THE NIGHTS OF TERROR ARE VIVIDLY DESCRIBED.

People Who Suffer from Sleeplessness are Slowly, Surely Killed.

There is no man in America whose range of observation has been so keen and far-reaching as that of Joseph Howard, the well-known journalist, whose letters are one of the features of the Boston Sunday Herald.

There will be no season of the city schools today, it being a legal holiday.

The Public Hall at East Edgington is to be newly painted, which will much improve its appearance.

Mr. Ernest Richardson returned to Bangor yesterday, after a visit to his home in this city and in Oakland.

Mr. French, of Old Town, is visiting here, Mr. Herbert French, of this city, at his residence on Washington street.

A very strong wind, of the March variety, prevailed yesterday and played pranks with hats and everything else movable.

A fast day praise and prayer service is to be held this evening at the First Congregational vestry, to which all are cordially invited.

The City Council holds a meeting this evening in the Aldermen's room in the City Hall building. Considerable business will probably come up.

Some of the stores will probably be closed during a part of today, it being a holiday, and the proprietors and clerks will have a short vacation.

Yesterday's breeze made the water in the river quite rough at times and passengers in the boats were given a little tossing about as they crossed.

This is the day on which the small boys think must ride horseback, and those who have an opportunity to do so, will be seen indulging in the pastime.

Four new members are to be initiated at the next meeting of the Lodge of Odd Fellows, next Tuesday evening. The lodge is growing and prospering.

The next meeting of the Volunteer Circle of King's Daughters is to be held next Monday evening, with Mrs. Reuben Chy, at her home on State street.

The annual reorganization of the First M. E. Sunday School is to be held this evening at the vestry of the First Church. This takes the place of a fast day service.

The weekly meeting of the Teachers' Bible class is to be held to-morrow evening, with Mrs. Denison, at her home on the corner of Union and East Summer streets.

The steamer C. P. Coners, which was built in this city, and formerly towed logs down from the dam, has been repaired at Bangor, and is now ready for service.

The annual printed city reports are out and ready for distribution. They contain the usual amount of interesting matter in regard to city affairs, reports, etc., and should be carefully perused by all.

The many friends in Bangor, formerly the private clerk for Mr. W. H. Richardson, are rejoicing, it is good to hear of his marriage to Miss Scudder, of Bangor, which occurred in this city last evening.

The East Edgington Band is making preparations to increase its efficiency and has engaged Mr. A. D. Harlow to instruct it during a term of twelve lessons. The organization will meet twice a week and expects to greatly improve in its playing, which is already very good. The band was recently presented with a new set of uniforms, and is now in the process of being fitted.

Members of the new Deluge Hose Company have been secured and the names will be presented to the City Council at its meeting to-night. The new company carried its reel to the city yesterday afternoon, but were attached to the steamer and so did not go in the subduing of the hose. This completed the set of fire companies, the places of those that resigned having been all filled.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Maria S. Brastow, of South Brewer, was held yesterday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, from the residence of Mr. F. H. Brastow, her son. There was a large attendance and the services were conducted in an impressive and feeling manner by Rev. C. A. Beckwith. Appropriate musical selections were furnished by the Brewer quartette. The interment was made at Oak Hill cemetery.

Two wedding anniversaries were celebrated at Orrington yesterday. Two couples, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Black and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wheeler, were married 40 years ago and yesterday were made by both an enjoyable occasion. The first named had a family reunion and dinner in honor of the day and Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler pleasantly entertained a company of friends last evening. The ladies are twins. Mrs. Roscoe Hall, of this city, was one of the guests, she being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Black.

FIRE WEDNESDAY. What turned out to be a small fire, but what might have been, and was in fact, a narrow escape from a serious conflagration, occurred yesterday afternoon. It was in the building owned by Mr. J. D. Oakes, near the Barbour ship yard, occupied in part by Mr. H. M. Whelden's wood yard, engine and machinery, the second floor being used for a hall. The blaze started beneath the building, undoubtedly from some oil or kerosene lamp, which was said to have been used for some time. The fire was first noticed by some children. The first alarm was given by the whistle of the Smith pluming mill at about 5:15 o'clock and in a short time the firemen were on the scene and water was being poured from four lines of hose on the flames, which were not in flames. The whole building and before they were subdued gained some headway up between the walls. Water was abundant, however, and in a short time the fire was out. The loss on the building was small, amounting perhaps to $50, uninsured. Mr. Whelden's loss was only a few dollars, as his wood was outside the structure and his machinery received but little damage. The fire was rendered by many bystanders. The escape from a serious blaze was a narrow one, as mentioned above, for had the flames really had time to gain any great headway in the building, the strong wind would have made it impossible to save it and perhaps several others very near by.

A SUNDAY OF DEATH. Saturday morning a young man by the name of Anderson was married to a young lady of Bangor, Maine. He took her to the home he had provided for a term near New City. About midday the bride was surprised by a young man who was drunk, leveled his shotgun at the bride and fired, hitting her in the chest and killing her. The bride was taken to the hospital, but died shortly after.

THE GOSPEL OF PAUL, by Charles Carroll Everett, Professor of Theology in Harvard University and Dean of the Harvard Divinity School. Anything from the pen of this accomplished, beautiful and scholarly writer will be received and read with interest by many friends and readers in this city where he, for many years, so ably presided over the pulpit of the Unitarian Church. In his preface to this book he says: In the following pages I present an interpretation of Paul's doctrine of the atonement which I believe to be new. Others, indeed, have had in their hands the clue that I have followed, and they have speedily dropped it as of no account. When I speak of an interpretation of Paul's doctrine of the atonement I do not mean a theory of my own of a possible scheme of atonement to which some of Paul's words may be made to fit more or less loosely. I mean a statement which has nothing in it of my own but which is based wholly upon an examination of the words of Paul, these being taken in their most natural and direct signification. Price $1.50. Published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, and for sale by Charles Hight.

HEROIC HAPPENINGS, told in verse and story, by Elbridge S. Brooks, author of "Historic Boys," "Chivalric Days," etc. There are few boys of the present day, even who have not in their nature an admiration for chivalry and love of heroes and heroic adventure. To such this book will come as a great boon. Of 227 pages, bristling with stories of the old and the new world, from Christopher Columbus and Casablanca to Lord's Lane and Memorial Day, with all that it implies, in prose and poetry, profusely illustrated, cannot help being a source of instruction and delight and an incentive to higher thought and nobler action. Price $2.00. Published by G. T. Putnam's Sons and for sale by D. Bugbee & Co.

SIMPLICITY AND FASCINATION, by Anne Reale, is novel Number 25, of the Good Company Series, a story told in England, beautifully told, and a fitting companion to the preceding numbers of the series, by such authors as Virginia F. Fennell, Mary E. P. Hatch, Annoda M. Douglas, etc. etc. Paper covers, price 50 cents. Published by Lee and Shepard, Boston, and for sale by the book dealers.

THE TRIALS OF HOBEN, Prince of Poets, done into English by George Chapman, in three volumes, is an addition to that beautiful series of volumes known as the Knickerbocker Nuggets, handsomely bound in morocco, blue and gold. Price of the three volumes $3.75. Published by G. T. Putnam's Sons, New York, and for sale by D. Bugbee & Co.

THE FIRST MILLENNIAL FAITH, by the author of "Not on Calvary." Much that is received as truth by religious people is out of joint with reason, and with the earliest and best types of Christianity. Human systems of theology have covered over and obscured the truth. The "First Millennium Faith" traces the origin of such doctrines as the popular vision of sin, the doctrine of the atonement, etc. It is a book in blue and white cloth, with gold stamping. Price 50 cents. Published by Lee and Shepard, Boston, and for sale by the book dealers.

TOOLS AND THE MAN; Property and Industry under the Christian Law, by Washington Gladden, is the substance of a course of lectures spoken to the students of New Haven Theological Seminary, and portions of which have been read before other Colleges and Universities, and contains chapters upon the following subjects: The Christianization of Society, Economics and Christian Ethics, Property in Law, Property in General, The Labor Question, The Collapse of Capitalism, Co-operation, the Logic of Christianity, Socialism, and Christian Socialism. Price, $1.25. Published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, and for sale by D. Bugbee & Co.

Flowers of Light. A group of unstarlings exhibit phenomena more frequently than any other flowers but it has also been seen in the corolla of the common sunflower, and also in species of the genus Helianthus, French botanists as the rose d'Inde, and in that large and beautiful compound flower called the dahlia; the emission of phosphoric light from the tuberoses, the yellow lily and some other flowers has also been remarked.

The Hesperid in Louisiana. Philpott says that Professor Huggins, the naturalist, perceived one evening a faint flash of light repeatedly darting from the margins of the leaves of such and such a plant, and he was so struck by the phenomenon that he went to the spot and placed a small mirror near him with orders to make a signal in the moment when he observed the light. He was so struck by the phenomenon that he went to the spot and placed a small mirror near him with orders to make a signal in the moment when he observed the light.

A Wonderful Australian Poppy. Lush flowers have been observed in the forests of Australia, and the following being an authentic report. Mr. Macdonald, of the park conservator, made a most remarkable statement in regard to the effect of a certain species of the Australian poppy possessed the peculiar property of glowing at night. Knowing that such things had been noticed before, he had believed that he was suffering from a deception of some kind. The light was certainly not in flames, but he had been observed by others. Finally he came to the conclusion that he was the victim of a practical joke, secretly being told that some one had mischievously painted the much-prized poppies with a luminous paint. Not to be so easily satisfied, he was one of the lightest of poppies and carefully conveyed it to his home, where he was surprised to find that the poppy was really glowing at night. He was so struck by the phenomenon that he went to the spot and placed a small mirror near him with orders to make a signal in the moment when he observed the light.

A Serenade of Death. Saturday morning a young man by the name of Anderson was married to a young lady of Bangor, Maine. He took her to the home he had provided for a term near New City. About midday the bride was surprised by a young man who was drunk, leveled his shotgun at the bride and fired, hitting her in the chest and killing her.
